

AS A WOMAN SEES IT

By RHETA CHILDE DORR.

Do the women want it? This is next to the oldest anti-suffrage argument, and since the oldest—"Woman's place is in the home"—was laughed out of circulation, it is the most popular. Do women want it? It is plain that a great many women do. Hundreds of thousands of them have been working for it during the last twelve months in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. And those same women, and more will go on working for it even if the voters of all four states did return adverse majorities against the suffrage amendments.

Millions of women have expressed themselves as wanting to vote. The General Federation of Women's Clubs, with a membership of nearly two millions; the National Council of Women, several hundreds of thousands strong; the National Education Association, largely made up of women teachers; the Woman's Christian Temperance union, with membership in every town and village in the United States; the National Council of Jewish Women, the Women's Trade Union League and countless smaller bodies, religious, educational and social, have made official statements that they want the vote.

It is one thing to stand up and be counted, and quite another to back up the assurance with deeds. Hundreds of teachers in New York state last summer gave up their vacation, or part of it, to suffrage speaking in the streets. In every town and city in the state women have given up their leisure, they have given all the money they could spare from necessities, they have sacrificed rest and pleasure and everything that once meant joyful living, to work for their vote. In spite of this, at every street corner meeting the question is hurled at them: "Do women want it?"

Samuel Adams it was who said that when the war of the American revolution was at its height, when Washington and his men were freezing at Valley Forge, one-third of the America people were Tories, another third were working and fighting for freedom. That is a fair ratio of fighters in any cause, but it is certain that the women who want the vote have exceeded it.

"OUT FOR BLOOD" SAYS STANSBURY

Intimation That Wesleyan Intended to Lay Down Here is Declared Pipe Dream.

Harry A. Stansbury, manager of the Wesleyan College football team, was here from Clarksburg Tuesday completing details for the big game here Saturday. Manager Stansbury assured the Telegram that there was no ground for an intimation made by the Fairmont newspapers that Wesleyan intended to lay down here so as to be in best shape for the Thanksgiving game at Fairmont. He made it plain that Wesleyan would be "out for blood" here Saturday. He said: "If we were going to play for the money we expect to make here Saturday we would cancel today. Washington and Jefferson gets a big guarantee with an option on fifty per cent of the gate receipts, and we pay the expense of the big preliminary between Marshall and Davis-Elkins, the officials, advertising, park rent and for all labor and arrangements at the park in addition to our team's expenses out of our fifty per cent. The Washington and Jefferson guarantee and expenses of the game exceed the gross possible revenue from the total seating capacity of the park, so how will we make money?"

"We are playing Washington and Jefferson simply because we want to win them. Why should we hold in reserve for West Virginia? A team on which Marshall College can walk the length of the field for a touchdown on forward passes should not worry us a great deal and it can be counted upon for a certainty that if Wesleyan can beat Washington and Jefferson Saturday by the use of the very best combination of Orange and Black players and plays, it will be done."

"West Virginia football fans have not yet been willing to concede the strength of the 1915 Wesleyan team and Saturday is an opportunity we have been waiting for to prove its strength and nothing will be held in reserve for Fairmont or any other game of the schedule."

"Fans have been discounting us because of our showing against Marietta. Final judgment on this point should be withheld till West Virginia meets Marietta at Parkersburg November 19. If Marietta doesn't cut West Virginia University to ribbons with its forward passes I am a poor judge. West Virginia University had its troubles beating Marietta."

WOMEN SHOULD TAKE WARNING

If the statement made at a New York assembly of women that healthy American women are so rare that they are almost extinct it is time for the women of America to take warning and look to their health. It may be headaches, backaches, dragging down pains, nervousness, mental depression that are tell-tale symptoms of some organic derangement for which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—a simple remedy made from roots and herbs—is a specific and may be relied upon to restore women to a healthy, normal condition.—Advertisement.

6-0 last year, and Marietta is recognized this year as fully thirty per cent better than 1914, and as one of the two leading teams in Ohio."

FOLWELL'S MEN PREPARING FOR BIG GAME HERE

Washington and Jefferson Will Work Hard to Win from Wesleyan.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 9.—Washington and Jefferson will endeavor right away, so far as it is possible, to forget the defeat received at the hands of Pittsburg Saturday and begin immediately its preparation for the battle at Clarksburg, next Saturday, with West Virginia Wesleyan. Coach Folwell said today that he looked for an extremely hard game at the end of the week. The contest with the Methodists in the mountain state will be made much harder by reason of the Pitt defeat inasmuch as Captain Kellison's team will be greatly encouraged and will doubtless figure that it now has a good chance to win. Washington and Jefferson is also certainly to be somewhat demoralized after the Pitt contest and Wesleyan will catch her before she has recovered her stride.

Folwell is particularly anxious that his team make a good showing at Clarksburg for the effect it may have in preparing for Lehigh which will wind up the season here on Thanksgiving. The Wesleyan game is important as Washington and Jefferson has a chance in it to annex the West Virginia collegiate title, although losing that of Western Pennsylvania. Lehigh is also of importance, inasmuch as a victory over the Red and Black will go far to restoring the prestige lost by the defeat at the hands of Pittsburg.

The Washington and Jefferson regulars were excused from drill Monday afternoon in order that they may nurse their bruises and bumps. The second and third elevens were put through a scrimmage and the first string will get back into harness not later than Tuesday. It is likely that Folwell will drill his men particularly in clean handling of the ball. The team against Pitt was very slovenly in this respect, several fumbles being costly and one resulting directly in a touchdown for Pitt. In previous games Washington and Jefferson has been proficient in grasping the ball tightly and cleanly and considerable surprise was expressed by local football men at the errors in this respect last Saturday. The Red and Black players partially broke training Saturday after the game, but all got back on a regular basis Sunday and nothing will now be permitted to interfere with the regular work until Thanksgiving. It is likely that a number of substitutes who showed to advantage when they got into the Pitt game will be given a chance in the three remaining contests.
